

The Brandenburg University of Technology (BTU) Cottbus-Senftenberg is a young university that is actively helping to shape the structural change in Lusatia to phase out lignite and is providing scientific support for transformation processes in many ways. In the coming decades, the region will be one of the most exciting real laboratories in Germany, from which groundbreaking development impulses are to emanate. Employment at the BTU therefore promises more than ever participation in development processes towards a sustainable and climate-friendly future.

The Faculty of Business, Law and Social Science invites applications for a

PROFESSORSHIP

Business Taxation and Auditing (w3)

commencing at the earliest opportunity.

The incumbent is expected to conduct teaching and research activities in the field of business taxation and auditing.

The incumbent's tasks will include teaching activities for master's and bachelor's courses on business and tax law in corporate taxation with high practical insights and a focus on accounting under tax law and the basics of auditing. Moreover, the incumbent shall have an in-depth knowledge of international corporate taxation, international auditing standards, and national and international auditing standards. It is expected that teaching activities include current auditing practices as examples.

Lectures are primarily to be held in German. The willingness to offer English language courses and courses in the faculty's continuing education programs is required.

The incumbent shall also contribute by publishing in national and international journals and/or tax law commentaries relevant to corporate taxation and auditing. In addition to that, the incumbent's research interests should open opportunities for cooperation in at least one of the faculty's research foci such as transformation, innovation, and start-ups. Also, the willingness to engage in networking within the university, especially in the institutes of Faculty 5, as well as active participation in the Centre for Legal and Administrative Sciences is expected.

An examination as a tax advisor or auditor and/or admission as a lawyer is an asset, but not a prerequisite.

Experience in the acquisition of external funding as well as in the implementation of externally funded projects is required. The research topics shall be relevant for the DFG (German Research Foundation) or comparable international research funding institutions.
